Cell kinetic aspects of the mechanism of anti-tumor action of 125IUdR. Cell kinetics aspects of the mechanism of action of 125IUdR have been investigated on mice transplanted with the L-M sub-line of L1210 leukemia. The data show that the inhibitory effect of 125IUdR on L-M leukemia is due to an increase in the time required to reach the G2/M phase. This increase is dependent on the radio-sensitivity of the tumor cell. The results also indicate that a large number of cells are required to exhibit a phenotype-reversion of radio-resistance to become sensitive to the cytotoxic effect of 125IUdR. Finally, it appears that in L-M leukemia, besides its cytostatic effect, the radiation-induced block to DNA synthesis may also act as a lethal event responsible for the radio-induced death of the cells.
