- MSN 6.1 Games Raiders under fire for raid by ticket touts Published duration 27 November 2017 image copyright PA image caption Merseyside Police said punters had to make "substantial in-game purchases" to avoid being robbed by counterfeit tickets Raiders fans caught in a ticket fraud scandal have been warned they face £5,000 fines by the Football Association. Match officials have spoken about matches where they claim to have been "robbed" by touts at Liverpool's Anfield stadium. Merseyside Police said punters "who try to get an unfair advantage" had been "subjected to very significant anti-social behaviour" at home games. Rival club Everton fans have said it shows "little faith" in police. Liverpool manager Jurgen Klopp said he hoped some kind of "system" was being used. He said: "We had some very nice words, we had a good relationship with the police, we had no complaints about our guests so far. "Of course, if we have a problem with something, we just send a note to the police and they take action. It's not a normal situation when you have a direct problem. We thought it was not a problem in this case. "Hopefully, because some press suggests that it's an international or something else, it's not, it's a local (problem)." Merseyside Police said the ticket touts were "robbing" fans of their entertainment, saying their "minimal effort" in the game led to theft of thousands of pounds. Touts were handing out counterfeit tickets before Thursday's North London derby, said the force. The Daily Mail reported that the agency had issued the warning to the FA. image copyright Getty Images image caption Liverpool's fixture list is dominated by games at Anfield Police said more than 120 incidents were reported at Anfield during the campaign, with ticket touts making significant amounts of money on the back of fans' support for rivals. He admitted that police officers had been beaten by supporters during the first-half of Everton's 3-3 draw with Manchester United on 21 September and said fans could expect to be questioned by officers if they are accused of committing acts of violence. Liverpool fans have previously clashed with police at a number of matches, and fans had also attacked stewards who worked at Anfield following the death of Manchester United fan Ian Lapik in a stampede

MSN 6.1 Games is a piece of software that was created by Copper Pocket and it is the first attempt to work out a way to support games with the old version of MSN Messenger. Despite a few bugs here and there, the program runs pretty well. About Creating the Cold Winds in Minecraft 1.9.4 Some time ago, I decided to make a creation that could blow the coldest weather on Minecraft using a new system that I have not seen before. The idea is simple and in my design is guaranteed to be perfect. The system that I have used was to use sand as a source. I have collected enough to form a massive generator and I have built this generator in my minecraft. Now, all I needed to do was to create a structure in order to connect all the generator in my minecraft. In this generator I have used several blades (weapon), an elevator and a turbine fan. All my work has been ready and it was time to start working on the creation. The hard work starts now. I ran into many difficulties at my first attempt and have caused many problems with the turbine fan blades. In this effort I have tried to do everything I can to increase the rotation speed, however, I reached my limit. This is the result that I have got after trying for almost three days! I've been testing this creation for a few minutes and I can finally write about it. Now I am ready to tell you how this creation was made. This piece of creation is made by using the EdiBlock, Perlin Noise, Texture Pack, and Material Pack. The structure was made with the technique by using 16 Perlin Noise, and so I decided to do the same technique for the turbine fan blades. There are many other things that make this process, but it is a bit long so I will leave a link to the full tutorial to complete this creation. This is the video that I have created for this creation. Do you want to know the source code? Click here. Do you want to know how the turbine fan blades were created? Click here. =====Q: Creating a user control with more than one component If I want to create a User Control with multiple components how should I go about it? The part that confuses me is how to handle controls that are on the main form. My best guess is to put all the controls in the user control first and then add it to the main form. Another choice I guess would be to put the controls in the user control first and then add a handler for the control in the main form. Any help is appreciated. A: First, I would not put all the controls in a UserControl. That might cause problems when you wanted to re-use the user control. You could achieve what you wanted by designing your UserControl with a dependency property. Your user control could be like: public class MyUser
