Enhancement of release of interleukin-12 from T lymphocytes in rheumatoid arthritis. Interleukin (IL)-12 is a T cell-derived cytokine with biologic properties similar to those of interferon (IFN)-gamma. In this study, we measured IL-12 production by synovial T cells from patients with rheumatoid arthritis (RA) and investigated the effects of anti-TNF-alpha monoclonal antibody (mAb) infliximab on IL-12 production. IL-12 and IFN-gamma production was measured by ELISA in conditioned medium (CM) from stimulated Jurkat cells (human T cell lymphoblastoid cell line) in the presence or absence of anti-TNF-alpha mAb (mAb-TNF-alpha) or inflix
