The program you are going to use is very useful, but it has two downsides: you have to use its Internet version and when you want to use it in offline mode, you have to copy it on your portable device (that can cause some problems). So I've developed a solution for both problems, using the fact that my program can open any windows file (*.fse) and that I have developed a simple program that can backup or recover a list of files from any *.fse. This utility has no added costs, so it will be free for the user and for the maker. I have named
