DAG member and former party leader Hashemite Ali Abdulla Turki has claimed there is a link between the recent outbreak of a polio-like disease and the "secretions" of "sheikhs" in Saudi Arabia. Saying that the polio-like disease had spread in Saudi Arabia as an "eye for an eye" for the kingdom's "illogical" policies, Turki added that "this is a game that is against humanity". Turki also called for "unbiased" international investigations into the alleged poisoning of Prince Mishal bin Saud bin Abdulaziz Al Saud, who died in a French hospital on August 27. "A few days ago, the son of Prince Sultan [another deceased Saudi prince] died in a French hospital. But the French government said the cause of death is not clear," Turki said. "His family members and friends say he was poisoned. They believe he was poisoned by the Saudis, ♦"

Q: Variance and standard deviation of binomial distribution There is this question in an exam: A container has $100$ red balls and $100$ black balls. A random experiment is performed where one ball is drawn and replaced after the ball is thrown into the container. Find the variance and standard deviation of the number of red balls after the experiment. I thought that it was a binomial distribution because the number of balls we have are binomial. That means we have $100$ balls that we have two types. So $x = $ balls of one type and $n=100$. So I used the formula:
$$\frac{\binom{100}{2}(100)(0.5)(0.5) - \binom{100}{2}(100)(0.5)^2}{100} = 0.5$$
